PREFACE

This preface is designed to show how this book is set up and to aid the reader in finding the account of a member of the family and to trace his lineage.

The introduction explains the development of the family name, and refers to common characteristics as observed from personal contacts, pictures, letters, books, articles and other materials. Both of these items are of interest from the point of view of the family as a whole rather than any one branch or generation.

This genealogy is divided into seven chapters. Chapter I tells about our forefather, John, who came to America in 1735 and who is referred to as the first generation, which fact may be indicated also by the numeral in parentheses, (1), following his given name. Chapter II describes the seven children of John (1); they are the second generation. Five of these seven children were sons, each of whom headed a large family. The descendants of the first son, John Jr. (2), comprise Chapter III; of the second son, William (2), Chapter IV; of the third son, James (2), Chapter V; of the fourth son, Thomas (2), Chapter VI; and of the fifth son, Rogers (2), Chapter VII. Within each chapter, or branch, the descendants are arranged by generations beginning with the third generation.

The descendants of John (1) are so numerous that only those who were born with this family name are treated here.

The given names of persons born with this family name appear alphabetically in an index in the back of this book, with page references to the genealogy. This index begins at page 207. Where there are several persons with the same name, they are arranged in the order of their appearance in this genealogy, except that the name of a "junior" appears directly after that of his father. When one locates a particular member of the family in the genealogy, it will be noted that he is grouped with his brothers and sisters, if any, while the names of his father and mother appear above the group with a page reference back to the father's family (the next generation back). By thus referring back generation by generation one may trace his ancestry back to our forefather, John (1). Following the account of any particular male member of the family will be found the number of his children, if any, with a page reference forward to where they are listed (the next generation forward).

An endeavor has been made in this genealogy accurately to reflect any change of name. For example, if a man were born with the name "Stinchfield" but changed it to "Stanchfield", both spellings are listed in the account of him. If the change were effected before his children were born, then they are reported only under the later spelling. In some instances the change took place between the births of children so that the older children are listed as born under the earlier spelling and the younger ones under the later form.

b. means "born"; m. means "married"; m.1. means "first marriage", etc.; res. means "resides" or "resided"; and d. means "died". Dates are listed numerically by month, day and year. A number in parentheses, after a person's given name or names, refers to that person's generation in this country.

An alphabetical index of persons who married into this family begins at page 227.

"Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the Revolutionary War" is quoted herein in accounts of such veterans.

Acknowledgment and appreciation are expressed of the kind assistance rendered by many persons in the family, and others, in gathering and furnishing information and references.

Special mention is made of the genealogical data compiled in 1883-4 by John Clark Stinchfield, historian and author, of Wayne, Maine, and of the kindness of his widow, Henrietta Howard Stinchfield, who gave his files to this author. These files contain letters from members of the family, certificates, and other materials, some of which disclose information not otherwise available today.

A special expression of gratitude is made concerning Thomas Billings Stinchfield, of Hoquiam, Washington, whose wise counsel was so helpful and whose generosity made possible the printing of this book.

INTRODUCTION

This family name has passed through various transitions, as have many other surnames. The story handed down from generation to generation in the family is that the surname of John (1) originally was "Sthenfeld". The first syllable "Sthen" came from the Greek word "sthenos" meaning "strong", "active" or "vigorous". This word root had about the same meaning in Latin and French, both of which languages had an impact on that of the Anglo-Saxons or old English. The noun "sthenia" and the adjective "sthenic" connote like meaning in modern English. The last syllable "feld" meant "field" in Anglo-Saxon, and other languages. No record has been found to establish positively the spelling at the time of birth of John (1). Then, "feld" was a common terminative syllable in surnames in his native community; the translation to "field" was just coming into vogue. If the name were "Sthenfeld" when he was born, then the spelling of the last syllable was changed from "feld" to "field" during his childhood because he spelled his name "Sthenfield" when he arrived in America just before his twentieth birthday.

Shortly after his arrival, he changed the spelling of the first syllable "Sthen" by pushing the letter "h" to the end of the syllable and inserting the letter "c" just ahead of it so that the name became "Stenchfield" under which spelling he was married and all of his children were born. After the family moved to the then District of Maine in the year 1755, the spelling of the first syllable was changed further by substituting "i" for "e" so that the name became "Stinchfield". John Jr. (2) was married under the name of "Stinchfield", according to secondary records; and his first son, born in 1761, was so reported. Although it was common to change the spelling of a name, often to americanize it, it was usual to revert, or refer, to the old spelling, as previously appearing of record, when signing formal documents as registered freemen or when enlisting in the armed forces. Thus a formal petition of freemen of New Gloucester in 1762, for presentation to the Great and General Court of Massachusetts, was signed by John (1) and John Jr. (2) with the name "Stenchfield". It is interesting to note that John (1) then had been using the name "Stinchfield" so long that from habit he first signed that petition with the letter "i" in the first syllable and then superimposed an "e" thereon, as the original document in the Massachusetts Archives and the author's photocopy thereof clearly show. Vols. XIV and XV of the Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the Revolutionary War list veteran members of this family under all three spellings "Sthenfield", "Stenchfield" and "Stinchfield", with appropriate cross-references. In the contract of settlement of the estate of John (1) in 1783, the signatures of all of his heirs show that the spelling of the name as "Stinchfield" was uniform throughout the family.

Ezekiel, son of Rogers (2) went to Lawrence, Massachusetts, shortly after 1820, almost forty years after the death of John (1). There he changed the spelling of his name from "Stinchfield" to "Stanchfield". Then gradually some other members of the family, particularly descendants of Rogers (2), adopted the latter spelling. This often occurred when a family moved to a new area.

There is considerable evidence that male descendants of John (1) have many of the following characteristics in common, to some degree: Average height; medium weight, increasing slightly in middle age, but few becoming real fleshy; shoulders of medium width, and some times sloping; thick through the chest; large legs and hips; fairly large nose; broad through the cheek bones; chin, firm but not prominent; rather thin lips; high forehead; fairly deep-set eyes with colors of blue and hazel predominating; straight hair, brown to reddish in color, and many instances of baldness; medium to reddish in complexion (often freckles); better than average in strength and endurance; unafraid of work; perspires freely; quite active; movements rather quick, sometimes giving the impression of acting on nerves; jovial; modest and retiring by nature; often wary of the untried stranger; religious, in humility and moderation rather than bigotry; musically inclined; over-conscientious; frugal; literarily expressive, but poor as correspondents; and last but far from least, very law-abiding as evidenced by the absence of the name from criminal records.

John Sthenfield, Stenchfield, Stinchfield was born October 12, 1715, in Leeds, England.

Following the death of his mother, John and his father, being the last of the family, traveled from Leeds in the northeastern part of England, down through Gloucester to Bristol where they took passage for Gloucester, Massachusetts, on a small sailing vessel in 1735; but John's father did not survive the trip.

Aboard this same ship was Elisabeth Burns who was born December 21, 1713, in the northern part of Ireland; her father was Scotch and her mother was Irish. It is reported in the Barbour Genealogy, Vol. V, page 2378, that she was related to Robert Burns, the writer, who was born somewhat later.

They landed at or near Gloucester, Massachusetts, in the summer of 1735.

John and Elisabeth were married in Gloucester in 1737.

It is appropriate at this point to make an explanation concerning some of the facts set forth here. At the time of John's birth, records upon dedication, christening or baptism were maintained clerically by parishes, of which there were many in the very large city of Leeds. Although extensive searches have been made by professional genealogists and public officials in London and Leeds for the use and benefit of this genealogy, no record of John's birth has been found in Leeds or the surrounding community. However, records made in this country refer to the date and place of his birth. There is further confirmation of this fact, and of others. John was forty-six years old when his first grandson, Ephraim, was born. Ephraim was reared near his grandfather in New Gloucester. It is reasonable to assume that John took pride in this brilliant grandson and told him about his early life. Ephraim maintained the family Bible with extensive vital statistics, including those of the birth of his paternal grandfather and grandmother. In addition to his preaching, Ephraim was a prolific writer, and many facts of interest to us appear in his writings. Data from this family Bible and these writings have been cited by authors and genealogists including J. W. Penney, of Mechanic Falls, Maine, author of Descendants of Thomas Penney (Ephraim Stinchfield's daughter, Patience, married Ephraim Penney), John Clark Stinchfield, referred to in the preface to this book, and M. F. Herring, of Braintree, Massachusetts, genealogist of the Herring Family (Ephraim Stinchfield's wife was Sarah Herring). Finally, a professional researcher in England reported for use of this genealogy that his examination of directories, records, etc., from the time of John to the present, disclosed no other person bearing this family name in any of its various spellings, thus lending credence to the story handed down to us through Ephraim that John was the last of the family when he arrived in America.

The Inhabitants of Gloucester, Massachusetts, in 1736, were granted by the Great and General Court a tract of land in the so-called District of Maine which became known as New Gloucester. Due to the hostility of Indians, the early attempts to settle the granted tract were unsuccessful. In the spring of 1753, John Roberts, former selectman of Gloucester, John Stenchfield and three other men went to New Gloucester to build a block house and stockade for security, clear land, sow crops, bush out roads and otherwise to prepare for another settlement. More help came later and the work continued through 1754. Records are silent concerning John Roberts during this period and it appears that John Stenchfield became the leader of this enterprise. He was also correspondent for the group since he could write very well, - an ability not common among such adventurers of his day. Quoted here is a copy of a letter which was unearthed, among other records, in the attic of the first settled minister of New Gloucester. Apparently it was John's first report to the proprietary committee at Gloucester, Massachusetts. It bears evidence of his education, faith in God, fearlessness and honesty of purpose.

“North Yarmouth, June the 5, the year 1753.
To Honorable Committee of New Gloucester,
Deacon Philemon Warner, Capt. William Stevens,
Mr. Nathaniel Allen: -

We have been up to New Gloucester. Esq. Mason piloted us up. The lower bridge is down and the upper bridge is rotten, but will be a great help in building another. The houses are chiefly rotten and burnt down. We have planted above an acre of ground. The mill is rotted down. The irons are safe. The hunters left water in the great fat and it is spoilt. We have not found the little one as yet. We want a grindstone very much for the mill. I should be very glad if you could send us an auger and a handsaw. I should be glad if you could send me some pork and some oil, and one quire or two of paper. I am informed by Jonathan Snow and Joseph Taylor, hunters from Dunstable, that there is a good road may be had the western side of the river. We are all in good health at present. Blessed be God for the same! We are bound up this morning with six men to New Gloucester to build a house. New Gloucester is burned up for winter rye and wheat. Pray, if possible, send me some winter rye and wheat in order to sow. Please give my humble service to all inquiring friends. No more at present, but remain

Your most humble servant to command,
John Stenchfield."

John moved his wife and children from Gloucester, Massachusetts, to the block house in New Gloucester in 1755. This structure served them as home for a period of about six years, and served the settlement as a fort and meeting house for a much longer period. John, who supervised the construction of the building and stockade, also was in charge of the two swivel guns and he well deserved the title which was given him, - "Hero of the Block House". (It may be well to observe here that just prior to World War II, and in anticipation of the bicentennial celebration of the settlement, plans had been virtually settled for the erection of a monument on the block house site commemorating his deeds and services. These plans were put aside during the war, and unfortunately they have not been revived.)

John, as carpenter, woodsman and farmer, built a house for himself and family nearby, cut the timber, cleared the land and tilled the soil. There he resided until his death on January 3, 1783. Elisabeth died August 19, 1785. They were buried in the cemetery close to the stockade.

Seven children were born to John and Elisabeth - see pages 8-10.

Children of John Stenchfield, Stinchfield

and Elisabeth Burns (see pages 5 to 7):

1. John Stenchfield, Stinchfield, Jr., b. 10-23-1738, Gloucester, Mass. Moved to New Gloucester, in the District of Maine, with his parents in 1755. Revolutionary War Veteran; "Private, Capt. William Harris's detachment from Col. Pike's (Cumberland Co.) regt.; . . .". m. Mehitable Winship. Their marriage was the first one solemnized in New Gloucester, and presumably was performed in the famous "block house". His name at the time of his marriage (12-27-1759) was spelled "Stinchfield". Farmer; hunter. res. New Gloucester. d. 2-21-1801, New Gloucester. Ten children - see page 11.

2. William Stenchfield, Stinchfield, b. 1-9-1741, Gloucester, Mass. Went to New Gloucester with the family in 1755. Revolutionary War Veteran; "Private, Capt. Moses Merrill's Co., Col. Edmund Phinny's (31st) regt.; . . . also list of men raised in Cumberland Co. to serve as militia agreeable to resolve of April 20, 1778, as returned by Brig. Lemuel Thompson, . . .". m. Mary Bodge. Farmer. res. New Gloucester. d. 5-2-1781, by drowning in the Little Androscoggin River. Nine children - see page 40.

3. Elisabeth Stenchfield, Stinchfield, b. 5-18-1743, Gloucester, Mass. Moved with her folks to New Gloucester. m. Deacon John Walker. res. Gray, Maine.

4. James Stenchfield, Stinchfield, b. 7-13-1745, Gloucester, Mass. Moved to New Gloucester with his parents. He was a famous scout and guide. Piloted the Forbes family from Canada to Maine. The trails blazed and used by him from New Gloucester, up the Dead River valley and thence to Canada, marked the general route used by Benedict Arnold. One writer relates that James was captured in Canada as a spy for the Continental Army, but he escaped and returned home safely. Several publications refer to him as having been a hero in the Revolutionary War, although official records do not list him as joined with any specific company. The nature of his assistance, scouting, guiding, and spying, probably would not call for enlistment in any organized group in that period. m. Sarah Parsons. Farmer. res. New Gloucester, on the old homestead. d. 6-15-1828, New Gloucester. Twelve children - see page 98.

5. Thomas Stenchfield, Stinchfield, b. 12-29-1747, Gloucester, Mass. Taken to New Gloucester when the family went there in 1755. m.1. Sarah True Paul. m.2. Hannah Lindsey. Explorer; town father; farmer; trader; merchant. res. New Gloucester and Leeds, Maine. A very close bond existed between Thomas and his grandson, Isaac. The latter's son, John Clark Stinchfield, related the life of Thomas in the History of Leeds. It is worthwhile to devote space here for mention of a couple of items from that writing. One is of historical note and the other is of human interest. Quotations are made because he wrote so interestingly. (1) As a boy it was his duty to stand guard and to warn the laboring townsmen of the approach of Indians, much to his distaste because he believed that there must be good in them if only faith in each other's race could be established. "His first meeting with Indians was on the west bank of the Androscoggin River, at the mouth of the Twenty-Mile Stream. He approached the little encampment unobserved until he stepped into the small open with the muzzle of his gun pointing downward, an indication of peace. His youth, too, may have been an element in his unmolested admission to their wigwams. The piercing eye of Sabattis, the chief, detected no purpose of the youthful Thomas but an open and honest one, and a friendship was there created that in future years extended to all the Indian tribes in the northern part of Maine. . . . To him they gave the name of 'Father Thomas'. . . . His services were sought in all disputes or quarrels of theirs, and his decisions were invariably received as the highest order of unwritten law." As a result of the friendship of Thomas and Sabattis, Thomas and his younger brother, Rogers, started a settlement in 1779 on land given them by the friendly chief. This settlement, up the Dead River from New Gloucester, became known as Leeds, after Leeds, England, the birthplace of our forefather, John. Thomas established a trading post and general store where he was famous for honest dealings with the people of both races. (2) In the fall of 1825, when Thomas was in his seventy-eighth year, his hand became caught and mangled in the teeth of the revolving beater of a horse-powered threshing machine. Two physicians were summoned for amputation of the hand. "As was his custom, Dr. Brigham had imbibed freely of the ardent, and when, if ever, uninfluenced by it, made little pretension in surgery. Neither of them possessed surgical instrument more than a knife and dull, rusty saw. Thus equipped, they stripped for business. A table and ropes were ordered, on, and with which to bind the unfortunate patient. Opiates, in such cases, were then unheard of, but stimulants were freely given. Many of the sympathetic relatives, friends and neighbors had gathered to render any possible aid, among them a young man of twenty-one years - a favorite grandson, Isaac 4 Stinchfield. When the order of the doctors was given for brandy, table and ropes to be brought in, it was promptly countermanded by the patient with unmistakable emphasis. 'I will neither be bound nor drunken! It is essential for someone to know what is being done.' Turning to the grandson, who stood beside him, he said, 'Isaac, you may stand here and if I can't hold my arm steadily, you can take hold and support it.' He extended it and told the doctors to begin. Neither protest, persuasion nor threat availed anything - all knew he said what he meant and he meant what he said. It was a long, tedious operation, but not a muscle was seen to move, nor a word uttered by him, while carefully watching the bungling performance, until the old saw entered the marrow, then, casting his eyes aside, he said 'Isaac, that is a little tough.' Such fortitude is seldom displayed." d. 10-25-1837, Leeds. Eight children, seven by m.1. and one by m.2, - see page 124.

6. Sarah Stenchfield, b. 5-16-1750, Gloucester Mass. Died in early youth, probably before 1755 because records refer to only six children who went to New Gloucester with John (1) and Elisabeth in that year.

7. Rogers M. W. Stenchfield, Stinchfield, b. 10-13-1752, Gloucester, Mass. He was named after Rev. John Rogers, the first pastor of the first church in Gloucester. Taken to New Gloucester by his parents in 1755. m. Sarah Babson. Farmer; town father. He assisted his brother, Thomas, in settling the town of Leeds, Maine, as cited above, where he resided until 1822 when he went to Milo, Maine, where his children were living. d. 5-2-1827, Milo. Eleven children - see page 148.

Harris's Co., Col. Pike's Regt.; age, 17 years, stature 5 ft. 6½ in.; complexion, light; ... also Private, Capt. Isaac Parsons's Co., Col. Humes' regt.; ..." Very noted "Traveling Parson", a Baptist minister. His handwritten record book contains the names of 1,174 persons baptized by him. POSTLOGUE

There are members of this family whose names and accounts are not included in this book. Some of them reside in areas whose directories are not available in Massachusetts where this research was performed; consequently they have not been located. Names and addresses of others were ascertained, and letters were sent to them but they did not respond; and, since members of the family are listed herein according to lineage, and the lineage of these folks could not be determined without response from them, they are not included.

Although letters to members of the family were accompanied by a printed sheet describing what information was being sought, some of them answered only briefly which explains why some accounts are limited.

This research was conducted by one whose occupational responsibilities required personal attention during working hours of the day and whose devotion to civic affairs occupied many evening hours. Paucity of time for this genealogical search and correspondence meant that this work was spread over a period of years. More recently, decreasing availability of spare moments and increasing restrictions in some places upon the right of reference to public records of vital statistics have made it more and more difficult to locate missing facts.

Notwithstanding the temptation to postpone publication of this book in the hope of making it more complete and encompassing, experience has taught that while waiting to discover additional members or data many changes are effected concerning those who have already responded, which facts must be brought up to date; and all of this is time-consuming. Furthermore, senior members of the family who are interested in this history and who kindly supplied information for this compilation are entitled to have the opportunity, while time is still available to them, to read with a measure of pride and satisfaction about the family of which they are members.

So this book covers a span of our family history from 1715 to 1963.

ROGER A. STINCHFIELD.
